After rallying Democrats to approve a party-line vote to impeach President Trump in December, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi has refused to send the two articles of impeachment over to the Senate for trial. She demands that the Senate abide by conditions that she and her party want to impose.

How long will she get away with this delay and will it help Republicans recapture the House in November, relegating Mrs. Pelosi back to minority leader status?

Rep. Andy Biggs, who compared the one-sided House hearings to Soviet show trials, will bring us up to speed on this and other congressional business.

Congressman Andy Biggs is an Arizona native who is serving his second term in the U.S. House, representing Arizona's 5th Congressional District.

Last October, he succeeded Mark Meadows (R-NC) as chairman of the House Freedom Caucus.

Congressman Biggs received his bachelor's degree in Asian Studies from Brigham Young University; his M.A. in Political Science from Arizona State University; and his J.D. degree from the University of Arizona.

He is a retired attorney who has been licensed to practice law in Arizona, Washington, and New Mexico. Most recently, Congressman Biggs served in the Arizona Legislature for 14 years – the last four as the Arizona Senate President. He was awarded “Champion of the Taxpayer” from Americans for Prosperity for his cumulative service in the Arizona legislature, and has been honored numerous times by the Goldwater Institute as a “Friend of Liberty.”

Endorsing Mr. Biggs during his successful first run for Congress in 2016, American Conservative Union (ACU) Chairman Matt Schlapp noted that Andy had a 95 percent lifetime ACU rating, and that he “fought hard against unaffordable Obamacare Medicaid expansion and his two consecutive ACU Ratings Awards for Conservative Excellence reflect his strong support for conservative principles on a wide range of issues, both economic and cultural.

“Biggs has demonstrated his courage and his leadership by explaining how seemingly-popular spending programs, like Obamacare and the State Children’s Health Insurance Program, fail to meet the needs of intended beneficiaries.”

Rep. Biggs lives in Gilbert with his wife of 35 years, Cindy. They have six children and five grandchildren.
